Partners praise CFE progress as it celebrates second birthday

As the Campaign for the Farmed Environment (CFE) celebrates its second birthday, new figures reveal that farmers have actively placed land the equivalent of around 73,000 football pitches into schemes aimed at protecting the environment. Campaign partners praised farmers, land managers, agronomists and farm advisers who have contributed to the achievements and reiterated the need for effective co-operation as the Campaign heads into its third year. Recent figures from Natural England reveal a 32 per cent increase of CFE target options in Entry Level Stewardship (ELS) since the Campaign began. Out of over 41,600 live Entry Level Stewardship (ELS) agreements, over 11,600 contain CFE options. This equates to an area of 52,317ha under key CFE/ELS target options or the equivalent of around 73,000 football pitches. Read more here

CFE's achievements celebrated by Partners

The CFE is supported by organisations from across the industry, a partnership that recognises the importance of managing the farmed environment voluntarily. With the CFE celebrating its 2nd Birthday, Partners have praised farmers, land managers, agronomists and farm advisers who have contributed towards the achievements. CFE and proposed CAP greening measures

A number of formal proposals in relation to the upcoming round of Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) reform have been published on the 12th October from the Commission. These proposals will now undergo what is likely to be a prolonged negotiation period before Member States can come to any decision on what will be implemented from 2014. Farmers and advisers have been asking an increasing number of questions regarding how their/their client's contribution to the Campaign for the Farmed Environment could be affected and also whether farmers should continue to support the Campaign. This is a period of great uncertainty. To view this interim document click here

Survey 2010/11: Additional Analysis

Defra Agricultural Change and Environment Observatory Research Programme has produced a paper which provides further analysis and commentary on the results from the 2011 monitoring survey that were published on 10 May 2011. It specifically investigates whether there are differences in response according to whether the farm is within a target county, membership of agri-environment schemes, farm type, economic size, region and farmer's age.
